

Keep it safe, keep it legal

A couple of questions:

Have you got a mobile phone?

Do you use it for work purposes, eg e-mail, Client's details?

If you can answer "Yes" to both of those questions, read on.....

As more people now use their mobile phones in their business, it's never been more crucial to ensure these are protected. 70% of people are doing this, and the figures are thought to increase in the next two years or so.

In the midst of the global health pandemic, more people are working from home, which means they are relying more on their mobile phones.

Microsoft 365, previously known as Office 365 until April 2020, is making it easier to connect effortlessly from your mobile, to engage with your Clients and colleagues.

People are also using Microsoft Teams and Zoom on their mobiles to attend meetings. The nature of some meetings are confidential and you want to be safe.

What if you open an e-mail that has a virus in it?

What if you lose your mobile, or it gets stolen or damaged by fire?

Remember the data on your mobile phone is subject to the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) which forms part of the Data Protection Act 2018. GDPR came into force on 25th March 2018.

YOU are personally responsible for keeping all data safe that you use in your business. If it gets into the wrong hands and someone complains to the Information Commission Office (ICO), you can be liable for a hefty fine.

Don't believe me – take a look at www.ico.org.uk/GDPR for your bedtime reading, but don't blame us if it gives you nightmares!

That's bad enough, but the loss of your reputation is another thing altogether. Don't let this happen to you.
